CENTRE FOR WORLD SOLIDARITY

About Us

Centre for World Solidarity (CWS) draws its intent, inspiration and direction from Late Shri V Krishnamoorthy and Shri M V Sastri, both belonging to the Gandhian school of thought of working for the small and self reliant communities. CWS was registered as a Trust in 1992. Yet, its roots can be traced to the civil society organisation Action for World Solidarity based at Berlin, Germany. Since then, CWS has made a significant headway in the pursuit of its objectives working in league with other voluntary organisations, Governmental agencies and academic/research institutions. CWS is actively engaged in addressing issues relating to human wellbeing, eco-sustainable livelihoods, and local governance with particular focus on helping the underprivileged and marginalized sections (especially women, dalits, and adivasis).

CWS central office is located in Hyderabad and implements projects across the states of Telangana, Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Jharkhand, Odisha, Maharashtra, and Tamil Nadu through its field offices.

Our Vision

The vision of CWS is the emergence of an equitable society of small communities, where all those deprived of basic human rights, especially women, dalits adivasis, and minorities, live with dignity a society that is vibrant with the consciousness of both rights and duties, free from violence and committed to eco friendly development

Our Mission

The mission of CWS is to promote a gendered and eco sustainable approach that will advance people centered governance, livelihoods and management of natural resources

Our Objectives

- To ensure food & nutritional security and strengthen livelihoods of marginalized communities
- To promote livelihoods with dignity and ensuring decision making capacity especially among women of all sections and other deprived communities
- To empower and enable the marginalized communities towards participatory management of natural resources and people-centered local governance

Philosophy and Approach

CWS is continuing its work with and for women, children, dalits, adivasis and small and marginal farmers as priority groups. Supporting women, children, Dalits, adivasis in achieving their aspirational goals, Eco-sustainable livelihoods and participatory local governance are considered as three main closely interlinked thematic areas that contribute to the overall well being of the marginalized sections of the society.

PROGRAM ACTIVITIES

A. Food and Nutritional Security

Food and nutritional literacy

Poshan Camp

Tri- Color Food Groups

Total number of 15-day Nutrition camps (Poshan) conducted: 206
Number of children screened: 1193
Number of MAM and SAM children identified : 866

Orientation to Women on 1000, IYCF

Follow- Up home visits

IMPACT

70% of the identified Moderately Acute Malnourished and borderline Severely Acute Malnourished children nurtured to normal status

Sanitation and hygiene awareness activities

- Promotion of sanitation and hygiene practices
- Promotion of safe drinking water management practices

Orientation to Children on Handwashing Practices

Safe disposal of Grey Water into Nutri Garden

IMPACT

- 90% of the 1500 surveyed target women indicated having access to adequate handwash facilities and 98% of them indicated following proper hand hygiene.
- 81% of women indicated adopting safe drinking water practices such as boiling water before drinking, keeping potable water covered and using the ladle to take water out of the container.

Self-reliance of households for nutritional needs

● Nutrition gardens

Approximately > 2000 nutrition gardens that have been initiated are monitored and supported with vermicompost and fencing support using local materials for maintenance: 11 Types of vegetables grown

Nutri Gardens

● Diversified crop production

Crop promoted: Millets (Ragi), Pulses (Red gram, Black gram), Maize, Vegetables

2500 farmers supported for crop diversification ; approx 15-20 % of cultivated land is under diversified crops other than paddy

Diversified production - millets, oyster mushroom cultivation

● Livestock management: Goat husbandry and backyard poultry ●

Training and awareness activities for Para- Vets and farmers on animal health care(vaccination, de-worming), feed, and housing

Organising animal health Camps

Animal health care services rendered to households

Animal health camps

Housing

IMPACT:

Increased diet diversity (Diet diversity score increased from 3 to 5 food groups among the households): Increased consumption of green leafy vegetables, other vegetables and pulses

About 48% of households having nutrition garden started consuming the produce from the gardens.

Mortality rates of goats and poultry has reduced (10 % as compared to baseline of 40 %)

B. Eco-sustainable livelihoods

Water harvesting and conservation

- Tanks renovated and developed in Salekasa block in Gondia District, Maharashtra, and in Banke Bazaar block in Gaya District, Bihar.
- Size/dimensions of tanks:- 50 'X 50' x 10 upto 100' x 100' 10
- Solar Lift Irrigation System (15 kWh) in Rondha village, Maharashtra
- Community Level Institutions initiated for managing the tanks and utilization of water for irrigation.

Tank Renovation

Solar Lift Irrigation

126 number of farmers getting access to irrigation

Irrigated area of farmers increased by about 121 acres

Gross cropped area increased due to assured irrigation

Promotion of non-chemical inputs for crop cultivation

- Integrated Farming System practices promoted that includes the use of bio-inputs ●

Preparation of bio-fertilizers (including vermicompost pits) and bio-pesticides

Tools developed to monitor crop management practices.

Supporting farmers in preparation of Bio-inputs,

Promotion of azola beds in convergence with state government scheme

Promotion of vermi-compost beds and its utilization

Value chain approach to promote non-chemical foods

Ecological value chains were strengthened by facilitating market linkages between Farmer Producer Organizations (FPOs) and Small and Medium Enterprises (SMEs) through strategic MoUs for the procurement, processing, and marketing of agroecological produce.

Around 50 products were promoted—including millets, pulses, spices such as black pepper and turmeric, hill broom, honey, oilseeds, indigenous rice varieties, and other region-specific crops—across multiple states.

Promotion of non- chemical food products

Farmer Producer Companies supported with Agro- processing machinery (Mini Dal Mill Machine)

Forest-based livelihoods

Value addition to local production processes that improve quality of forest-based products as well as agricultural products that fetch better price and markets. This encourages the community to value their local forest resources and thereby motivate them to actively participate in local governing process.

- In Andhra Pradesh, existing Common Interest Groups (CIGs) received support to strengthen value addition for hill broom and black pepper enterprises. For hill broom production, small tools, packing machines, packing covers, plastic handles, and fancy wires were provided to improve labour efficiency and product quality. Black pepper producers were supported with 30-foot aluminium ladders for safe harvesting, tarpaulins, winnowing equipment, gunny bags, and other small tools. Additionally, a pepper threshing (decorning) machine was installed for the CIG in Dabuguda village, Araku block, enabling efficient separation of pepper seeds from spikes, reducing post-harvest drudgery, particularly for women, and improving processing efficiency.

Ladders for Safe pepper harvesting

Pepper Threshing Machine

C. Women Empowerment and Child Development

- A total of 128 young women participated in personality development and legal literacy training.

193 women (who faced different forms of vulnerability such as domestic violence, poverty, abandoned) have been given small input support to start their own businesses (small food kiosks, grocery shops, tailoring units, cosmetic shops, cloth shops) to meet their immediate financial needs and to boost their self-confidence.

Off- farm income generation support- tailoring machines and grocery shops to single women

IMPACT

96 of the trained young women are emerging as potential leaders who are positively assertive in their communication skills and are becoming positive influencers among their peers in the village.

44 women showed good entrepreneurial skills and expanded their businesses, mainly grocery stores and snack shops.

Life cycle approach for child development

CWS implements a Child Development Programme with support from ChildFund International (CFI) across three project locations—Hyderabad (Telangana), Kakinada and Salur (Andhra Pradesh)—reaching 2,590 children. The programme follows CFI’s life-stage approach, supporting children and youth through three age groups: 0–5 years (Life Stage 1), 6–14 years (Life Stage 2), and 15–24 years (Life Stage 3), creating opportunities for children, youth, and families with limited resources.

Locations: Telangana (Hyderabad) and Andhra Pradesh (Kakinada and Salur)

Age-wise distribution of participating children

Age groups	Focus area	No. of children
Children (0-5 years)	Health, Food & Nutrition	58
Children (6-14 years)	Education	2368
Adolescent girls and boys (15-24 years)	Livelihood	164

Interactive session with children

Motivating aspirational goals among the youth

IMPACT

Improved emotional well-being of children and positive parenting in the households

Youth improved their life skills and developed clear career goals for their future
