Centre for World Solidarity (CWS), established in 1992 as a registered Trust, is a not-for-profit organization inspired by Gandhian principles of small, self-reliant communities. CWS works across rural and urban areas in India, focusing on the well-being of marginalized groups such as women, Dalits, Adivasis, minorities, and small and marginal farmers. Its core thematic areas include livelihoods, human dignity, and people-centered good governance. Guided by a gender-sensitive and eco-sustainable approach, CWS promotes inclusive development by addressing food and nutritional security, advocating for constitutional rights, and strengthening local governance systems to ensure equity and justice for the underserved
